Theories of Relativity (2003), a novel by Canadian children's writer Barbara Haworth-Attard, follows Dylan who experiences homelessness after his mother kicks him out of the house. Dylan seeks refuge at a public library, where he discovers the writings of Albert Einstein. Dylan is inspired by Einstein and his worldview: he treats with skepticism any theory about how the world works, or what one's identity really is, and embraces the inconclusive aspects of life.

Theories of Relativity Summary | SuperSummary

Dylan has developed plenty of theories about his life on the streets: Every fourth person will give him money; no one gives him something for nothing; all relatives suck. Not that he's on the street by choice; his mom booted him out and he's never seen his father. Hanging out at the library and grabbing the first book within reach to make it look like he's there to read, Dylan becomes ...
